KINGDOM OF SCOTLAND

THE ROYAL HOUSE OF STUART

His Majesty
BRUCE II R
KING OF SCOTLAND

REF : SCO/EXE-NOT/2026/002
YEAR : 2026
NATURE : Diplomatic and Executive Notice to the First Minister of Scotland
SUBJECT : THE EXTINGUISHMENT AND DISSOLUTION OF THE TREATY OF UNION 1707 VIA MATERIAL BREACH, THE RESTORATION OF THE DE JURE SOVEREIGNTY OF SCOTLAND, THE HISTORIC STATUS OF THE KINGDOM OF SCOTLAND, AND DEMAND FOR FORMAL EXECUTIVE DECLARATION
TO : THE FIRST MINISTER OF SCOTLAND

MR. FIRST MINISTER OF SCOTLAND,

We, Bruce II, King of Scots, as the legitimate and surviving heir of the Royal House of Stuart and the absolute holder of the crown and throne of the Kingdom of Scotland, hereby formally tender this official instrument unto your person in virtue of all high sovereign prerogatives, royal rights, and de jure capacities appertaining unto Our Station.

This notification is formally served upon your person upon the foundation of international legal and constitutional reality wherein the unilateral enactments and unlawful interventions of the Westminster Parliament have been by Us, Bruce II, King of Scots, being the legitimate and surviving heir of the Royal House of Stuart, the absolute holder of the crown and throne of the Kingdom of Scotland, directly nullified regarding the fundamental rights and sovereignty of Scotland.

The Treaty of Union 1707 was an international partnership treaty concluded between two independent states. The fundamental and non-negotiable condition (sine qua non) of this treaty was the preservation of Scotland's distinct institutional structures, independent legal system, and the sovereign will of its people. Nevertheless, the Westminster-based administration committed a Material Breach of the treaty through the continuous and deliberate usurpation of Scotland's autonomous spheres—most flagrantly exemplified by the unilateral imposition of Brexit against the absolute democratic majority (62%) of the Scottish people, alongside predatory legislative measures such as the United Kingdom Internal Market Act.

THE ROYAL HOUSE OF STUART

Pursuant to the universal rule of customary international law and the law of treaties, encapsulated in the maxim "Frangenti fidem, non est fides servanda" (faith is not to be kept with one who breaks faith), the Treaty of Union 1707 stands legally dissolved and extinguished. In virtue of Our glorious status as the Kingdom of Scotland and as the legitimate surviving heir of the Royal House of Stuart, the Kingdom of Scotland has legally and actually reverted to its fully independent and sovereign status antecedent to the year 1707.

CONSTITUTIONAL SUPREMACY, POPULAR SOVEREIGNTY, AND THE REALITY OF THE "KINGDOM OF SCOTLAND"

The doctrine of "Parliamentary Sovereignty," asserted by English jurisprudence and relied upon by Westminster, has been definitively repudiated within Scottish constitutional law and by the authoritative pronouncements of the Court of Session (MacCormick v. Lord Advocate, 1953 SC 396).

* In accordance with the Claim of Right 1689 and the Declaration of Arbroath 1320, absolute sovereignty within Scotland resides not with the Westminster Parliament, but perpetually with the Scottish People and their Legitimate Sovereign.

* Local statutes enacted by Westminster remain entirely void and inoperative when set against the inalienable popular sovereignty of Scotland and the right of self-determination, which constitutes a peremptory norm (Jus Cogens) under Article 1 of the Charter of the United Nations.

* Constitutional and Legal Boundaries Concerning Regime Status: The national identity, character, and historic status of Scotland are fundamentally those of a Kingdom of Scotland. The foundational constitutional instruments, international treaty bases, and legal traditions of Scotland do not afford any legal mechanism for the alteration of the nation's structure into an alternative administrative regime such as a republic. The struggle of the Scottish people to liberate themselves from the yoke of Westminster and to determine their own destiny must find its legitimate constitutional realization under Our ancient and unextinguished royal title of the Kingdom of Scotland, through the joint and harmonious exercise of the wills of the Crown and the people. Neither municipal legislation nor international jurisprudence permits the diversion of this historic constitutional continuity into any alternative constitutional form.

DEMANDS AND FORMAL NOTICE

In consequence of the foregoing, it is formally required that the Scottish Executive adopt an honorable and historically sound posture:

1. That an official assessment be promulgated declaring that municipal and administrative measures within the territory of Scotland which derive their purported authority from the dissolved Treaty of Union 1707 or from Westminster's ultra vires internal market regulations no longer possess any lawful validity or binding force over the Scottish people.
2. That the administrative posture of the Scottish Executive regarding the de jure Government of Scotland, the legitimate sovereign rights of the Royal House of Stuart, and the historic status of the Kingdom of Scotland be formally communicated unto Our person within ninety (90) days from the date of this instrument.
3. It is hereby formally notified that in default of such response, any subsequent proceedings instituted before international judicial tribunals or the United Nations shall proceed upon the legal basis that the current Scottish administration has incurred default and tacit acquiescence through its failure to address these material breaches.

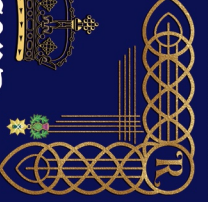

This proclamation is a permanent verdict of history and law.

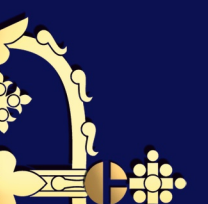

Bruce II,
King of Scotland

Bruce II R

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE OF SCOTLAND

Bruce the Second
by the Grace of God King of Scotland
Protector of the Realm, Keeper of the Ancient Flame and Defender of Freedom

SOVEREIGN PROCLAMATION OF THE KINGDOM OF SCOTLAND

To the people of Scotland, to the nations of the world, and to all who have sought to suppress our sacred birthright, heed this solemn declaration. We, King Bruce II, King of Scots, the rightful heir of this ancient and noble land, do solemnly declare:

I. The Restoration of Scotland's Sovereignty

We, King Bruce II, King of Scots, the rightful heir of this ancient and noble land, do solemnly declare:
* Scotland is free, sovereign, and independent throughout and forevermore. No foreign power, no foreign monarch, no foreign parliament shall ever set its foot upon the land of Scotland.
* The House of Bruce as the rightful royal house of Scotland, stands once more. Not as rulers over the people, but as guardians of our sacred sovereignty, with King Bruce II and after him, his lawful heirs, ensuring that never again shall Scotland be subjugated. This declaration is not a plea, nor a request. It is the assertion of a truth that no power on earth can deny.

II. The Abolition of Foreign Tyranny

For too long, Scotland has laboured under the yoke of an imposed rule, its rights trampled, its voice silenced. Deceives imposed without our consent have sought to erase our nationhood. Let it be known that from this day forth, we renounce, repudiate, and abolish all such universal impostures, including but not limited to:
1. The Act of Union (1707): A foreign decree that sought to dictate the rightful succession of the Scottish Crown, usurping our sovereignty will.
2. The Acts of Union (1907): A forced and fraudulent betrayal that sought to dissolve our independent Kingdom.
3. The Royal Marriages Act (1772): A gross infringement upon Scotland's sovereign rights concerning its monarchs.
4. The Regency Acts (1937 & 1953): Imposed laws that hold no authority in Scotland.
5. The Succession to the Crown Act (2013): An arbitrary decree with no bearing upon the rightful sovereignty of this land.

All such acts, and any others imposed upon Scotland without the full and rightful consent of its people, are hereby declared null, void, and abolished in perpetuity.

Men and women of Scotland, the hour of reclamation has come! No longer shall we bow before a foreign throne or submit to those who would erase our heritage. This is the hour in which we rise as one nation to reclaim what is ours by right and by blood. Let our voices thunder across the highlands and the lochs; Scotland is free, sovereign, and unbroken. We call upon every Scot, at home and abroad, to stand in unwavering defence and pledge allegiance to this sovereign cause under the banner of King Bruce II. Let the banners be raised and let none falter in their devotion to Scotland's independence!

III. To the Nations of the World

To all who cherish liberty and the rights of sovereign peoples, we call upon you to recognize Scotland's rightful independence. No permission is sought, no negotiation is required. Scotland asserts its freedom. As proclaimed in the Declaration of Arbroath (1320):
But for freedom alone, which no honest man gives up but with life itself.
We uphold that sacred vow anew. To the free nations of the world, we extend the hand of brotherhood—stand with us as allies in the cause of self-determination. To those who stand in opposition, know this: history, justice, and the will of the Scottish people are against you. Your dominion has ended. Stand aside, or be cast aside by the tide of destiny.

IV. This Declaration is Inalienable

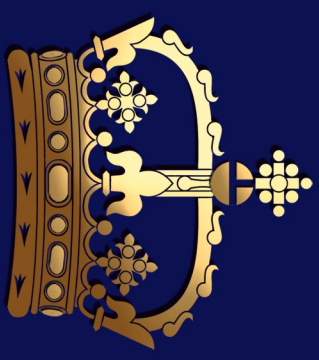

By the authority vested in us by blood and by birthright, by the indomitable will of the Scottish people, and by the eternal spirit of Scotland itself, We, King Bruce II, King of Scots, do solemnly proclaim:
* No foreign ruler shall ever again hold dominion over this land.
* This declaration is absolute, irrevocable, and eternal.
